Forterra's Abbey Red Multi bricks were chosen in the first phase of development to help the scheme's one and two bedroom apartments and three and four bedroom houses form an even aesthetic that effortlessly blends in with the rural ambience of this traditional agricultural community.

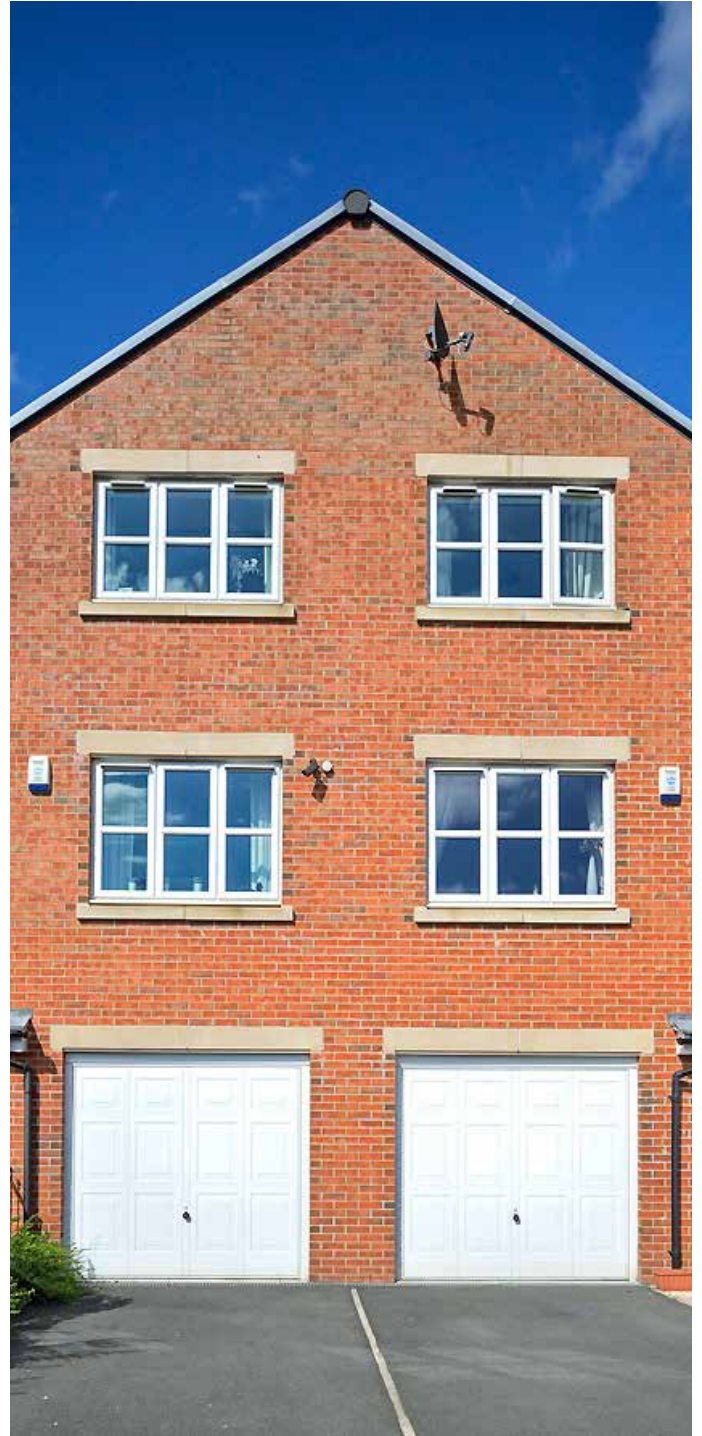

Stonebridge Fold

At Stonebridge Fold in East Ardsley, West Yorkshire, Forterra's Abbey Red Multi bricks were chosen in the first phase of development to help the scheme's one and two bedroom apartments and three and four bedroom houses form an even aesthetic that effortlessly blends in with the rural ambience of this traditional agricultural community.

The brick's earthy red hues are in keeping with the development's woodland surroundings and are complemented by sporadic deep greyish-purple contrasts, which reflect the roof tiles.

Natural stone blocks draw the eye to feature windows while a pale mortar, combined with bright white window and door frames, highlights the rich red façade of each property adding to the development's rustic charm.
